Waterloo Public Library links to many third-party vendor sites provided through funding from both the City of Waterloo and the State Library of Iowa. These vendors are selected based on various criteria, such as price and the Library's collection development policies.

Access to some of these vendor resources requires a Waterloo Public Library card number, a personal identification number (PIN), and/or an email address. We do not provide any data to vendors that would violate your privacy. We do not share your email, phone, or address information, although vendors may ask you directly for this information when you are setting up an account.
